

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A process, system, and method for gathering information through the use of electronic mail transmittals, and incorporating the information into an electronic database are provided. A user may send a textual template, via an electronic mail system, to a recipient who edits the information contained within the template. The recipient then returns the edited textual template to the user via electronic mail. The information contained within the edited textual template is then processed by the user's electronic database system and integrated into the user's electronic database.

TOP SECRET